Budding Student Entrepreneur

A Success Story from GDC Pattan

In the realm of agricultural innovation, college students often play a pivotal role in exploring new avenues for sustainable food production. One such success story revolves around the journey of Nayeema Gul D/O Ghulam Mohammad Sofi, student of B.A, 6th Semester bearing Roll No. 2101333, a budding entrepreneur and a passionate college student who delved into the world of mushroom cultivation with remarkable results. This narrative chronicle Nayeema's inspiring journey from curiosity to accomplishment in the realm of mushroom cultivation.

Nayeema's journey began with extensive research and hands-on experimentation. Drawing from academic resources and seeking guidance from mentors at Department of Botany and skill development cell of the college, in collaboration with SKUAST-K Wadura, Nayeema acquired the knowledge and skills necessary to embark on mushroom cultivation. Her journey has had a ripple effect within the college community and beyond. The efforts were lauded by the college administration, who felicitated her at a humble event organized by the College Innovation Cell.
